“The capacity to learn is a gift; the ability to learn is a skill; the willingness to learn is a choice.”

– Brian Herbert

We believe we have solved Adult Learning problems. At Apex Learn, a Nonprofit 501(c)(3) education organization, we’re not here to give you a short and sweet answer to big questions like "what's my best fit?", "how to find meaningful work?", nor do we catering typical "F.I.R.E." or "get rich quick" mentality. We design our process from Malcolm Knowles's Andragogy principles. Active listening helps to find your interest, identify the significance and relevancy not only your pressing problems, but more importantly for your long-term goals; we design self-directed, and trainer facilitated courses to allow you use the wealth of experience you already have and capture all the moments that you feel ready to learn; we welcome you to an environment established culture of cooperative learning so that you can collaborate with other learners. Since 2014, our learning facilitators have been working tirelessly to make learning unimaginably fun so that you can archive the unthinkable future.
